DIRECTOR'S NOTES

Welcome to the Eighth Biennial Festival of New American Plays. This week we are proud to present exciting new works by our guest playwrights Constance Congdon and John Cariani. The plays you are about to see performed are presented as "staged readings." Professional theatres and producers use such readings in order to involve audiences and actors in the process of new play development. Plays are meant to be performed, and the best way to see whether a new play works is to present it in front of a live audience. This is where you come in—and we thank you for being here!

Each play in the festival has had only ten rehearsals. The actors will be performing with the script in their hands, relying on their talent and training to interpret the text without the advantage of a long rehearsal process. These readings have been designed to concentrate on the words of the playwrights and the talents of our young performers and designers. We have included a minimal amount of scenery, costumes and lights to give the writers what they envisioned in their scripts. We are attempting to present the world of the play as closely as possible to what the author has written. The results may be a different type of theatre from what you are accustomed to seeing. Our hope is that you will find this event both adventurous and exciting.

One of my goals when we started the Festival in 1998 was to bring established writers to our campus to work with our students. We have always asked our invited playwrights to send us any script they wished to hear and, in return, we have promised to give them our best interpretation of the text. Another goal has been to give audiences in Nacogdoches the unique opportunity to see new plays while they are being created. Our first seven festivals were great successes. Now with this eighth festival, I hope the community will once again enjoy this celebration of "new theatre in the making."

I wish to thank the faculty and staff of the School of Theatre. My special thanks to Professor Scott Shattuck for his guidance, to Juanita Finkenberg for her help with the movement and her involvement in all the festivals we have done so far and to Benn May, my assistant director, for his creative contribution. I commend the cast, designers, stage managers and crew for the work they have done. Watching these young theatre artists learn and grow is the primary reason we are here. Finally, to Constance and John—thank you for trusting us with your plays and for coming to visit our campus. You inspire us with your words and astound us with your generosity.

We dedicate this festival to our friend James McLure, who passed away in 2011. Over the years, Jim gave us five exciting new plays to present at this festival. We miss his wit, his words and his love for our students and this event.

About the Playwrights

JOHN CARIANI (Love/Sick) is an actor and playwright. He has appeared on and off-Broadway and in several films and television shows. His first play, Almost, Maine, opened off-Broadway in 2006 and has since become one of the most frequently produced plays in the United States. Recently, it has been translated into Spanish, Dutch, French, Korean, Romanian and Turkish. Cariani has two other plays in development: Last Gas and Cul-de-Sac. Love/Sick is his newest play, and he wishes to thank Jack Heifner and this very brave cast for tackling a brand new work! Originally from Presque Isle, Maine, Cariani now lives in New York City.

CONSTANCE CONGDON (Take Me to the River) has been called “one of the best playwrights our country and our language has ever produced” by playwright Tony Kushner, in his introduction to her collection Tales of the Lost Formicans and Other Plays. In addition to Tales of the Lost Formicans, which has had more than 200 productions worldwide, Congdon’s plays include Casanova, Dog Opera, Losing Father’s Body, Lips and Native American. Her latest play, Paradise Street, is being developed at New York Theatre Workshop. A Mother, starring Olympia Dukakis, and a new verse version of The Misanthrope were both commissioned and produced by the American Conservatory Theatre. Moontel Six, a commission by the ACT Young Conservatory, was subsequently performed at London’s National Theatre. The Automata Pieta, a Young Conservatory commission, received its world premiere at San Francisco’s Magic Theatre in 2002. Congdon’s No Mercy and its companion piece One Day Earlier were part of the 2000 season devoted to her work at the Profile Theatre. She has also written a number of opera libretti and seven plays for the Children’s Theatre Company of Minneapolis. Congdon’s plays have been produced throughout the world, including Cairo and Berlin. Congdon has been teaching playwriting at Amherst College for sixteen years.

About the Playwrights

JACK HEIFNER (Hate Mail) is best known for his play Vanities, which ran for five years in New York and become one of the longest-running plays in off-Broadway history. He is also the author of Patio/Porch, Natural Disasters, Running on Empty, Bargains, Boys' Play, Home Fires, Heartbreak, Comfort and Joy, The Lemon Cookie, Dwarf Tossing and over thirty other plays produced in New York, Los Angeles, and theatres around the world. Mr. Heifner has written the book to six musicals, including Leader of the Pack on Broadway and Vanities—A New Musical, which opened in New York in 2009. He has also written for television and film. Mr. Heifner was born in Corsicana, Texas, and lives in New York City. Since 1997, he has been playwright-in-residence at SFA, where he teaches play, screen and television writing one semester each academic year. At SFA, he has also directed Home Fires, The Seagull, The Member of the Wedding and How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying.
