About Kierra Chavon:

I have been interested in interior design since childhood. When my family was in the process of moving to a new home, we were visiting many model homes and houses in the construction process. Seeing how each model home was designed was always fascinating to me. Observing color schemes and furniture layouts within the spaces caught my interest and I knew that I wanted to go into the field of interior design. My passion has always been more geared towards the aesthetic and space planning side of design.
