A Day in my Life with Parietal Lobe Damage

By: Ashley Dutton
Faculty Sponsor: Sharon Eaves

“I would no longer be able to drive because I could turn in the wrong direction and have a wreck (trouble distinguishing from right and left).”

My poem homework is due, but I was unable to figure out what to write to finish the homework (Inability to locate the words for writing).

I have an intramural soccer game for my sorority and am afraid I will make the team lose because I am an awful player since my accident (difficulties with eye and hand coordination).

I forgot to press the button and proceeded to ride the elevator for ten minutes until I put my phone down and realize what happened (inability to attend to more than one object at a time).

My professor tells me to sit down and begin taking notes. However, I cannot read the notes on the board to write them down (problems with reading).