THE JOHN F. KENNEDY CENTER FOR THE PERFORMING ARTS

The Kennedy Center American College Theater Festival 47, part of the Rubenstein Arts Access Program, is generously funded by David and Alice Rubenstein.

Additional support is provided by

The Honorable Stuart Bernstein and Wilma E. Bernstein, Dr.
Gerald and Paula McNichols Foundation, the National Committee for the Performing Arts, The Harold and Mimi Steinberg Charitable Trust, and Beatrice and Anthony Welters, the AnBryce Foundation.

These productions are entered in the Kennedy Center American College Theater Festival. The aims of this national theater education program are to identify and promote quality in college-level theater production. To this end, each production entered is eligible for a response by a regional KCACTF representative, and selected students and faculty are invited to participate in KCACTF programs involving scholarships, internships, grants and awards for actors, directors, dramaturgs, playwrights, designers, stage managers and critics at both the regional and national levels.

Productions entered on the Participating level are eligible for invitation to the KCACTF regional festival and also may be considered for national awards recognizing outstanding achievement in production, design, direction and performance.

Last year more than 1,300 productions were entered in the KCACTF involving more than 200,000 students nationwide. By entering this production, our theater department is sharing in the KCACTF goals to recognize, reward, and celebrate the exemplary work produced in college and university theaters across the nation.

About the Production Team

ZACH HANKS (Director, To Kill a Mockingbird) is a member of the School of Theatre's acting and directing faculty. At SFA, he has directed the radio plays spam: in all lowercase letters and The Phoenix on the Sword. His other theatre directing credits include comedic adaptations of 1940s Lux Radio Theatre scripts as a member of the Los Angeles old-time radio comedy troupe "Fake Radio" as well as The Legend of Sleepy Hollow, The Magic Mirror and adaptations of Appalachian folk tales at Theater at Lime Kiln in Lexington, Va. He has directed dialogue for many interactive games, including S.T.A.L.K.E.R.: Shadow of Chernobyl, Saints Row and the Company of Heroes and Warhammer 40,000: Dawn of War II series.

LAURA RIKARD (Director, Alice in Wonderland) is a member of the School of Theatre's acting and directing faculty. Her previous SFA directing credits include Charlotte's Web and Dead Man's Cell Phone, the latter of which received six awards from the Kennedy Center American College Theatre Festival. Her acting credits include work with the Actor's Studio in New York, New Perspective Theatre, Heritage Theatre Festival, Richmond Shakespeare Festival, American Shakespeare Center, Odin Teatret in Denmark and Battersea Arts Centre in London. She also has worked in television and film and has worked under the direction of Steven Spielberg and Nora Ephron. As a director, her credits include 13: the Musical, The Memory of Water, Romeo and Juliet, The Cherry Orchard and The Little Matchstick Girl.

SCOTT SHATTUCK (Producing Artistic Director) came to SFA in 2007 from New York City, where he headed the theatre and media program at Marymount College of Fordham University. He was previously producing and artistic director of Jean Cocteau Repertory, an Off-Broadway classical theatre company. He also has served as director of the London Dramatic Academy and as chair of the Department of Theatre and Dance at Pennsylvania's Dickinson College. He has directed at Arkansas Repertory Theatre, the National Shakespeare Conservatory and the Texas Shakespeare Festival, among other venues, and served on the production staffs of the Denver Center Theatre Company and the Colorado Shakespeare Festival. At SFA, in addition to his work as leader of the School of Theatre, he teaches directing and has directed projects ranging from major musicals and Shakespeare plays to readings in the biennial Festival of New American Plays.

A Note From the Director

Harper Lee's novel To Kill a Mockingbird is one of the most popular and beloved works of American literature. It won a Pulitzer Prize and is widely taught in schools. Its hero, the inimitable Atticus Finch, is regarded as a moral paragon by fans and he is admired and imitated by lawyers for his ethics and integrity as well as his cunning in the courtroom. The film adaptation earned eight Academy Award nominations and three wins, including Best Actor for Gregory Peck, whose performance inspired the American Film Institute to vote Atticus Finch "the greatest hero in American film."

We stand in a long, looming shadow cast by these literary and cinematic titans. At the start of this process, I first considered what would make this evening of theatre worthwhile for an audience who could have just as easily stayed home instead and watched the film, or worse, read the book. I shuddered to imagine competing with Hollywood talent and bud-gets, and I dared not compete with the infinitude of a reader's boundless imagination.

A novel or a film is crafted somewhere else in the past, devoid of your input or participation, for you to consume in the future absent the company of the creators of the work. In addition, you can walk away from it at any time, marking the page or pausing the video, and come back later without having missed anything.

With theatre, we create it here and now. If you leave, you miss it, and tomorrow's performance will not be the same show. You co-create the performance with us. The actors hear your every laugh, gasp and palpable silence, and they adapt in real time to your reactions. The stage manager and crew will shape the cues differently every night, feeling each audience's unique energy like a master sailor feels every delicate change in the wind.

Shortly, you will help us to create something that has never before existed. In two hours, it will vanish forever, but its echo will leave with you, and it is yours to keep.

-Zach Hanks

About the Production Team

ANGELA BACARISSE (Costume Designer) supervises all costume and makeup designs for School of Theatre productions. She has designed and taught at the University of North Carolina-Asheville, James Madison University and the College of Charleston. Her designs have been seen at Mount Holyoke College, Southern Appalachian Repertory Theatre, Blowing Rock Stage Company, Playhouse on the Square in Memphis, East Texas Opera, Pioneer Valley Summer Theatre in Massachusetts and the Asheville Lyric Opera. As a cutter-drafter, she has worked on productions at the Alley Theatre in Houston, the Texas Shakespeare Festival, The Mac-Hayden Musical Theatre, Theatre in the Square in Atlanta and the Georgia Shakespeare Festival.

CC CONN (Lighting Designer) supervises all lighting and sound designs for School of Theatre productions. She has designed lighting and/or sound for Phoenix Theatre Ensemble in New York, OutProud Theatre in Atlanta, Brown County Playhouse, the Honeywell Foundation's Ford Theatre, Indiana University and Middle Tennessee State University. She worked extensively as a lighting technician in Indianapolis and Atlanta for IATSE Locals 30 and 927 as well as Beef and Boards Dinner Theatre, 14th Street Playhouse, Gwinnette Civic Center, Agnes Scott College, Full Circle, MAGNUM Companies, and other theatre and entertainment companies. She holds an M.F.A. in Lighting Design from Indiana University.

FRED M. DUER (Scenic Designer) has designed everything from summer stock for The Monomoy Theatre to opera for Opera Delaware. He previously designed The Beauty Queen of Leenane and A Cheever Evening at SFA for Summer Rep in 2006. Regional credits: Illinois Shakespeare Festival; Indiana Repertory Theatre; Colorado Shakespeare Festival; Indiana Festival Theatre (also Associate Producer); Theatre Aspen; Brown County Playhouse; San Diego Repertory Theatre; Pasadena Playhouse and Off-Broadway at Criterion Center. He was resident designer at The Old Globe Theatre for five years and a founding member of The Shakespeare Festival/Los Angeles, where he designed 11 productions over 22 years. As production designer, he designed sets for The Fresh Prince of Bel-Air, In The House, Saved By The Bell: The New Class and City Guys. He was nominated for an Emmy Award for The Pat Sajak Show on CBS in 1989. He taught at Kansas State University and Indiana University and currently heads the design/technology program at Temple University. Academically, his design work includes The Cherry Orchard, The Scarlet Letter, Falsettos, Urinetown, Nine, Hamlet, Hay Fever, Lysistrata, Hair and The School for Scandal.

A Note From the Director

"Theater is so critical because it has always been able to release people from their isolation . . . The theater is a communal event, church. The playwright constructs a mass to be performed for a lot of people. She writes a prayer, which is just the longings of one heart."

-Marsha Norman, playwright

Thank you for attending today's production of Alice In Wonderland. We are grateful to have you, and we hope that this experience will be a communal event for your loved ones and yourself.

Inspired by the rustic beauty of East Texas, we have attempted to create a Wonderland that children in this area might stumble upon when playing outside or exploring the attic of a grandparent's house.

Wonderland is a state of mind that we choose to explore when searching for "what goes on inside of you," according to the White Rabbit. So please feel free to participate with our performers today as they break the "fourth wall" and make you a part of this magical world. Answer their questions out loud, sing and dance along to the songs, and sit back and relish the fun of each moment, because, as the Cheshire Cat advises, "Once a child leaves Wonderland, there is never a way back."

Enjoy the show!
